The William L. Sayer Collection of Books and Pamphlets

Relating to Printing, Newspapers, and Freedom of the Press

Free Public Library
New Bedford, Mass.
1914

During an active life of 66 years, William L. Sayer, editor of The Standard, showed a devoted interest in many educational and charitable organizations in this city. An influential member of the School Department, a member of the Board of Trustees of the Swain Free School of Design, for ten years a member of the Board of Trustees of the Free Public Library, in each field of action his services were of extreme value and his counsel of the wisest. The solution of many questions of vital interest to the community was in great measure affected by his intelligent and painstaking judgment. His interest in the Free Public Library continued after his official relations had ceased, and the gift of his valuable library of books, bearing on Newspaper Publishing and the Law of Libel, gives evidence of his kindly disposition towards the institution with which for many years he had been so intimately connected. The clause in the will referring to the bequest is as follows:

> "I give and bequeath to the City of New Bedford, Massachusetts, for the use of the Free Public Library, and to be in the custody and under the control of the Board of Trustees of said Free Public Library, my collection of books, pamphlets, pictures and autographs, relating to printing, to newspapers and newspaper men, and to the freedom of speech of the press; on condition that they shall be kept together permanently, as one collection, and that my bookplate shall remain permanently in such books and pamphlets as now contain it, and shall be placed in, and be allowed to remain permanently in, such as do not; and I direct my executrix to furnish a sufficient number of such bookplates to carry out this provision of my will."
